

62% OF SHOPPERS BELIEVE THAT BUYING AMERICAN-MADE PRODUCTS FUELS THE ECONOMY AND JOBS

Granville, NY, June 30, 2011 - In honor of July 4th, Telescope Casual Furniture, the leading manufacturer of Outdoor Furniture, is pleased to release the latest findings from its National Shopper Survey.

The survey reveals that a full 62% of U.S. shoppers believe buying American made products helps support the domestic economy and jobs. Additionally, 52% say buying American makes them feel good.

The survey also reveals shoppers' patriotism extends into Outdoor Furniture purchases as well. When asked which factors are most important to them when buying Outdoor Furniture, "Made in America" ranks in the Top 5.

CEO of Telescope Casual Furniture, Kathy Juckett, says, "It's clear that shoppers value Outdoor Furniture's country of origin nearly as heavily as its style, warranty and durability. Retailers should leverage this insight by using related messages and imagery in their stores to connect with shoppers – especially as our nation celebrates its independence."

The Telescope National Shopper Survey is a national internet survey of 1500 adults conducted in April 2011, by WSL Strategic Retail, shopper insight strategists and futurists.
